Insurance

To Whom It May Concern

- I confirm that Monash University has a Personal Accident Insurance Policy which provides capital, medical and loss of income benefits for all currently enrolled Monash University students. The policy covers students actually engaged in practical or community placement activities.
- University students are not workers' for the purposes of the Accident Compensation Act 1985, and the work experience provisions of the Act do not apply to University students.
- Students engaged in practical training including practical placement, community placement, enterprise experience and work experience are named insureds under the University's General and Products Liability Policy.
